

50 Ways To Tell If A Girl Likes You On Facebook Or Social Media

---

By

Dating Logic

1. She Makes A Friend Request Multiple Times

This is how she is trying to get your attention. She may have sent you a friend request that you didn't see or you ignored. She then sends you another in the hopes that you will notice her and accept her friend request. She may give it a week or so before she sends you that second friend request just to ensure that you don't think she is needy or pushy. She keeps doing this with about a one week interval in the hopes that you eventually accept her as a friend.

2. She Likes Many Of Your Photos

She will often do this in rapid succession. In other words, she doesn't take her time to do it over a period of days or weeks. She may like many of your photos within a few minutes of looking at them. This is how she is showing that she is really into you and what you look like. If you also notice that several of the photos that she is liking is just of you and you alone with no one else in the photo, that is her way of telling you that she is focused in on you.

3. She Leaves A Lot Of Love Emojis

She does this with several of her messages to you on your social media. You may not even really think much about it at first but then you notice that she just keeps doing it. She may try to be subtle at first and send you emojis that are more funny. However, over time, you notice that the emojis have become more focused on love or images of attraction.

4. She Brings Her Friends To Your Page

You start to notice that several of her friends seem to be landing on your page. They are reading your posts and even liking some of your photos. It may start slow at first but over time you can clearly see that more and more of her friends are finding your page and going through it. It's how they are going about checking you out to see if you are worthy of their friend and if you would be a good match.

5. She Uploads Similar Photos To Yours To Her Social Media Page

She starts copying what you do to an extent when it comes to the kind of photos you post. If you have a number of photos that show you exercising, you may notice that she is beginning to post a number of photos showing her exercising. Same if you have a number of photos around a favorite artist or type of music and so on. She just starts to mimic the kind of photos that you post. She does this to make you feel like she has something in common with you and thereby get you to like her.

6. She Gives You Compliments Often

She compliments you even when it seems like there is no real reason to. She may compliment something that you said to someone else on your page or she may just outright give you compliments. If you were to follow her messages on other people's social media pages, you will notice that she isn't complimenting those people anywhere near as much as she compliments you. This is how she gets you to feel good about yourself and feel good about her.

7. She Notices When You Haven't Posted

She gets used to seeing your posts because she follows you very closely. However, if you typically have a posting schedule and you deviate from it, she notices. You may have only missed a couple of days of posting, something that most of your regular friends wouldn't notice and yet she does. She asks where you are or if everything is okay. This shows that she needs to have you post so that she can maintain that consistent connection with you in the hopes that one day it can become more than that.

8. She often Invites You To Social Events

She may send you a message inviting you to a social event, party or function. She personally sends these invites. She really doesn't miss an opportunity to invite you even if you don't respond to the message or tend to turn her down. She will most likely try again. She gets to have you wonder about whether you should go. She wants you to be in this frame of mind and she ultimately wants you to come because she wants to see if you will both have chemistry when you are face to face.

9. She Remembers Your Anniversaries

She is always on top of days that are important to you. She will often be one of the first people to send you a happy birthday wish. She will be one of the first to send you a goodwill message on a special holiday. She really makes an effort to be the first to do it so that she remains the first person in your mind before all of your other friends begin to send you well wishes.

10. She Asks More About You Personally

She begins to make some real attempts to get to know you more as a person. She may have started with just liking your photos and your posts, but now, she is actually trying to learn more about you without your prompting. She may ask you questions about your childhood or your family. She may ask you about the hometown you grew up in. If you keep getting these kind of deeper and more personal questions, she is showing that she wants to know you on a deeper basis and hence she likes you.

11. She Sends You Chat Requests Often

She wants to chat a lot. She can't help but send you chat requests. She may start slow with these requests. Perhaps making one request a week. But in time, she sends you chat requests more frequently. It may go as high as a chat request every couple of days. She does this in order to isolate you enough so that she has your attention. When she can chat with you only, she will have your undivided attention. This gives her the opportunity to get you to know her better.

12. She Is Often Online When You Are

She makes it a point to learn your social media activity patterns. She learns the time of day that you tend to be online the most. Once she has observed this, she makes it a point to be online when you are. You will notice that for some reason she just seems to pop up only a few minutes after you log in. This is how she tries to get you to notice and get curious about who this girl is.

13. She Tells You To Check Out Her Social Media Page

She is going to want you to come to her page. She knows that you will get a much better sense of the kind of person that she is when you do. She makes these invites every so often so that she can finally tempt you enough to actually go to her page. She hopes that once you are there, you will look around and spend some quality time there so that you can get a really good sense of what she is about.

14. She Posts Sexier Photos Of Herself On Her Page

She may not have done this often in the past but she is now making a point to post sexier photos of herself. She begins to make these kind of posts with much more frequency. She may wear a sexy outfit in the photo or have a new hairdo or have great make-up on. She may even expose some skin. It is all done to let you see her sexy side and grab your attention. Perhaps you will like her photo and make her day.

15. She Posts More Photos With Guys

She does this to let you see that she has guys who admire her. By showing you her guy friends, she may trigger a sense of competition in you. You may have been very nonchalant toward her up until this point but now that she is posing with guys, you are suddenly curious about who these guys are. She always makes it clear that these guys are her friends. She doesn't want you to get the impression that one of them could be her boyfriend. But she does hope you notice them and be spurred to take action.

16. She Goes To Social Media Pages Of Your Male Friends

Your friends may start telling you that this girl keeps coming to their page and reading their posts. They may even tell you that she has mentioned you a few times in her comments. The more you hear these kind of accounts coming from your friend, the more likely it is a pattern. She does this to gauge your friends so that she can get more of an understanding of the kind of guy you are. She also wants to see if she can get hints from them about the kind of girls you tend to be attracted to.

17. She Is At The Top Of Your Visitor Column

She is often your top visitor and that constantly shows on your visitor column. She is right there alongside some of your closest friends who tend to visit your social media page on a regular basis as well. You may ignore it for a while but eventually, it really becomes obvious. She can't help herself but be one of your top visitors because she keeps trying to get a feel for the kind of guy you are as you interact with your friends on your page and make posts.

18. She Is At The Top Of Your Visitor Column Throughout The Day

She doesn't just stop by your page, stay at the top of your visitor column for a few minutes and leave for the rest of the day. She is at the top or near the top throughout the day. She is coming in and hanging on your page for hours and then she may leave to attend to something but then she comes back again. This happens throughout her day. She is really intent on what you are doing and she simply can't get you out of her mind.

19. She Is Often the One Who Initiates Conversation

She may have gotten tired of waiting on you to acknowledge or say something to her, so she initiates conversation. She does this in order to start a conversation that she hopes will ultimately lead to either you asking her out or asking her for her number. Once she has initiated conversation with you the first time, it becomes a lot easier for her to keep on initiating conversation with you. She hopes that at some point, you will also start initiating conversation with her.

20. She Asks If You Have A Girlfriend

Most girls on social media really don't care whether a guy has a girlfriend or not unless they are interested in him. If you notice that she has asked you this question, perhaps even a few times, she is showing strong signs that she hopes that you don't have one and that you can consider her to be one at some point in the future.

21. She Checks Out The Social Media Pages Of Your Female Friends

You may have some of your female friends telling you about a girl who keeps checking out their pages and asking them questions about you. This is how she tries to gauge whether any of these girls are actually closer to you than just mere friendship. In essence she is staking out the competition to ensure that the coast is clear.

22. She Leaves Posts That Relate To You

She may know that you have a particular belief or viewpoint about something and she makes it a point to post about that particular topic on her social media page. She does so in a flattering way that is designed to support what you believe in. For instance, if you have a passion for animals, she may make a post about her love and support of animals. This is all done in order to get you to feel like you both have something in common and should interact to see if you can find even more stuff in common.

23. She Sends You Private Messages

She doesn't want everyone to always be privy to what she says to you or how she interacts with you or what topics are discussed. Thereby, she will often send you private messages. She is hoping that you get so used to them that you begin to look at her as more unique than the other people that you tend to interact with on your social media page.

24. She May Block You Temporarily

She really does this with the intent of seeing how you react. If you start going to her other social media accounts in a frantic attempt to see what she is up to, she knows that she has left an impression on you. She consequently unblocks you. It was all a test to see if she is having a real impact on your life. By rushing to her other social media accounts, she knows that she has your attention and she hopes that her act of blocking you scares you enough to spur you into action by asking her out.

25. She Asks For Your Opinion A Lot

She may really want an opinion on what she should think about a particular issue or whether she should do something in particular. She may ask her friends on her page about it. However, she will often ask them in a general way without necessarily asking one of them specifically. However, she will ask you specifically for your opinion. She has singled you out which means that you are special to her and she values your opinion more than she does the opinion of her other friends.

26. She Remembers And Brings Up Details About Past Conversations

She has a way of remembering even the smallest details about discussions that you have had with her in the past. She will make it a habit to bring up these minute details when she interacts with you. It's her way of showing you that she pays attention to what you say and she values it. She also hopes that it makes you realize that she takes her discussions with you seriously.

27. She Wants To Go Deeper With A Post

She may have started by merely liking your posts. However, over time, she starts wanting to go much deeper with some of your posts. Instead of just liking it or leaving a short comment, she asks you more about the post and how it came about. She does this to get you engaged into a real conversation with her. She hopes that the conversation eventually segues to more topics about her or yourself and you can both begin the process of getting to know each other better.

28. She Makes Friend Requests On Your Other Social Media Accounts

She may have started with only making a friend request on Facebook. However, now that she has gotten to know you better, she makes friend requests on all of your other social media accounts. She actually actively finds you on those other social media accounts and makes those friend requests. She wants to ensure that she doesn't miss anything you do on any social media avenue. She knows that the more she learns about you, the more she will be able to get a better idea of how to appeal to you.

29. She Gets Her Friends To Bring Her Up In Online Conversations

She may recruit her friends to go to your social media page and start conversations with you. The idea is to start with something that relates to a post you made but to eventually branch out to something else. As they talk to you, they mention her. You get curious about this girl and naturally ask more questions about her. Now they have you thinking about her and they proceed to tell you more and more amazing things about her in the hopes that you visit her social media page.

30. She Keeps Changing Her Look

She may be posting photos of herself on her social media page but you aren't really responding to them. You are not liking the photos or leaving any comments in relation to them. In an attempt to get you to be more engaged, she starts changing her look more often. She keeps doing this in the hopes that you will eventually like her photo and start engaging with her.

31. She Flirts With You Online

She doesn't necessarily start with flirting as she gets to know or try to establish a line of communication with you. However, over time, she starts to flirt with you in more and more subtle ways. She may tell a dirty joke or reference something sexual that she recently witnessed. It's just a way for her to see if you will flirt back. If you do, she knows that you are responding to what she is doing and you may actually be attracted to her.

32. She Is Very Supportive

She often supports and encourages you when you need it. You may have an exam coming up or an interview or a promotion opportunity and she will often be the one giving you words of encouragement and uplifting you. She is invested in your happiness. She knows that if you get what you want, you will be in a happier state of mind. If you are in a happier state of mind, you will be a lot more receptive to her.

33. She Hints On Other Ways Of Communication

She has been communicating with you for a while on social media. She has now gotten to the point where she feels like she needs to take this to the next level. She starts to hint at other ways you can both communicate besides social media. She may mention communicating through a video service like Skype or even texting. She is sending the message that she wants to get you out of social media. This makes her feel like she is getting you closer and closer to a real life meeting.

34. She Hints At Meeting In Real Life

Perhaps she has been unsuccessful in getting you off social media when you communicate with her. She decides to try another tactic. She drops hints about meeting in real life. She doesn't ask you out directly. She may say something about an event you frequent and then she mentions that she is actually thinking about attending it next week. That gets you thinking about meeting her in real life. After all, if you were planning to be there in the first place, here is an opportunity to be there and meet her too.

34. She Sends You Virtual Gifts

She wants you to realize that you are special to her and she sends you these virtual gifts. They normally relate to something that she knows you love or they are just funny in nature. She doesn't want to be too obvious about the fact that she likes you but she also doesn't want to be too subtle either. She sends the gifts semi-regularly, not all the time.

35. She Gives You Private Updates

She gives you private updates about herself that she actually doesn't post on her social media page. She does this because she wants you to get the latest scoop on her and to also feel like you are on another level from the other friends on social media. The more she gets you to feel like you have the inside knowledge on what is going on in her life, the more she hopes that you begin to share more about your own life that you don't share with your followers. This is how she builds trust with you.

36. She Writes Longer Messages Over Time

She gets more and more comfortable with interacting with you on social media to the point where her messages get longer and longer. They are no longer a phrase or a sentence or two. She is writing actual paragraphs of text. She feels more emotionally invested in you and automatically shows that through how much she writes. She is also hoping that by doing that she can get you to write her longer messages so that your discussions can become more meaningful.

37. She Gives You Tech Tips About The Social Media Site

There may be other really neat technical things you can do on your social media account that you aren't aware of. She lets you know them and may describe them in detail. Now you know you can do something new and technical on your account to help improve the way you communicate with your followers. She hopes that you give her credit for this and like her for making the technological side of your social media experience a lot easier.

38. She Shows You Something Before Posting It

Most people just post what they want on their social media page without asking for feedback first or running it by some of their friends. She, on the other hand, starts showing you some of the posts that she is thinking about putting up before she does it. She is using you as her support and her confidant. She is trying to get you to feel special about being the one she comes to before she even makes a post every now and then. This may get you to like her.

39. She Suggests Other Social Media That May Be Better

She may be on Facebook chatting with you from time to time, however, she may not really like Facebook all that much. She suddenly starts telling you about trying this other social media site. She tells you that it is really good and would really fit you. This is most likely her social media site of preference and where she has the most followers or friends. She hopes to convince you to sign up with that account because she knows that she is a lot more comfortable and successful in interacting with people there.

40. She Sends You Links To Popular Posts From The Social Media Site

She doesn't want you to miss anything that may be going on in pop culture. If there is a post that is making the rounds on the social media website, she may send you a link to it. This is how she keeps you connected with pop culture. She hopes that you tell her about what you thought about that story and thereby engage with her in conversation. Since it is a popular post that is being shared all over, she believes that it can get you to be more interactive with her.

41. She Asks For An Update On A Previous Post

You may have posted something about an experiment you were doing or some kind of project you were working on in the past. However, it's been a few weeks and you haven't mentioned it in your most recent posts. She brings it up in a message she sends to you. She may tell you that she was really looking forward to your update about such and such but she hasn't seen it yet in your most recent posts. She is showing that she really wants this connection with you and the more she knows about you, the better.

42. She Brings Up An Ex- Boyfriend

She is messaging you through your social media and soon brings up her ex-boyfriend. She may tell you that he keeps messaging her on her social media and she just wishes he would stop. She is trying to gain your sympathy and to also let you know indirectly that she actually doesn't have a boyfriend. This is also how you get to start talking to her about her past relationship with him which now shows that you are in the space of talking about relationships. This is the space she wants you to be.

43. She Defends You Vigorously

There are always going to be haters online. You may have put up a post that is getting a lot of attention, both negative and positive. She is the first one to defend you when someone attacks you and criticizes what you posted. She is so vigorous in doing this, it feels like the person is attacking her instead of you. Being that she likes you, she feels like anyone who attacks you, attacks her.

44. She Lets You Know About Relevant Sales Promos

Through your posts, she has learned that you have a passion for several things. Perhaps you have a passion for video games. She keeps a look out for promos. When she knows that there is a promo for the video game that you like that would give you a discounted price on it, she lets you know about it before any of your friends do. She is trying to win your favor and get you to realize that she is looking out for you.

45. She Posts More Videos Of Herself

She may have been posting quite a bit of photos and text posts but you haven't really been responding as much as she had hoped. She knows that videos can be very powerful because they allow the viewer to see and hear. It also gives the viewer a really good sense of the personality in front of the camera. She starts shooting herself in videos and uploading those videos to her social media. They are typically relatively short. She hopes that you watch them and thereby gain further insight into her personality.

46. She Wants To Learn More About Your Friends

She shows a genuine interest into delving into your personal relationships. She asks you more questions about the friends in your life because she wants to use that as a way to relate to you. She will most likely bring up her own friends as a way to draw a parallel with what you are telling her about your friends. It's how she tries to show you that you are both a lot more similar than you may realize. If you get the vibe that her friends are just like your friends, you may be a lot more willing to let her into your life.

47. She Showcases Her Talents

She makes a point to let you see and know what she is really good at. She may be a great singer. She proceeds to post short videos of her singing or of her lyrics. She knows that this is something that she is good at and hopes that you notice her talent. Perhaps you love music too and you can't help but be drawn to her talent. This is a way to get you to loosen up to her.

48. She Sends You Links To Funny Jokes Or Articles

She knows that getting a person to laugh can be very effective in building relationships. She sends you links to funny jokes or articles because she is hoping that she gets you laughing. You may even turn around and share that link with your own friends. Those friends may ask you how you found it and you mention her. Now you are talking about her with your friends. Now you realize that she made you all laugh and possibly made your day. This makes her look good in your eyes.

49. She Gets Personal About Herself

She tells you more and more about herself without you prompting her to. She may share some very personal stories about her childhood or about her family. This is how she tries to get you to realize that she is a real person who is multi-faceted and not just a social media friend. She hopes that by giving you these personal stories, you begin to realize that she is truly a unique individual that you would really like to get to know even more.

50. She Chats With You Late Into The Night

She doesn't mind chatting with you late into the night on a regular basis. She may have school or work the next day but she chats with you late into the night anyway. She may tell you that she is going to be so tired in the morning but just really loves chatting with you. This is how she is showing that she is savoring every moment she gets to communicate with you even when she knows that she isn't going to get much sleep that night.

CLICK HERE TO DOWNLOAD MORE EBOOKS.

DatingLogic.net