

50 Tests A Guy Does To See If You Like Him

By

Dating Logic

1. Stares At You To See If You Stare Back

A guy will often stare at you as a test to see if you look back at him. He wants to see if your eyes find his and if you are able to sustain that eye contact. He is looking for how long you maintain the eye contact and what expression may be on your face. He isn't necessarily smiling at this time. He may just be observing. If you stare back over a sustained period of time, he gets the vibe that you like him.

2. Smiles At You Constantly

By smiling at you on a consistent basis, he wants to see if you will smile back at him. He is testing your response. He knows that if you consistently smile back at him, you are noticing what he is doing. If you were only to smile back once and the rest of the time you don't, he knows that you were only initially smiling at him to be polite. In essence, the more often he smiles at you and you smile back, the more assured he is in the possibility that you like him.

3. Flirts With You

When he is flirting with you, he is trying to gauge your level of response. He is wondering if you will flirt back. If you do, he knows that what he is doing is pleasing to you and you are trying to play along. The more you flirt back with him, the more emboldened he is to take things further every time he sees you. He will eventually want to go as far as actually asking you out.

4. Touches You Often

It is typically a light touch to your arm, thigh, shoulder, etc. He does that briefly and then takes the touch away. He is testing you to see if you noticed what he just did. Perhaps you briefly glanced at his hand when he touched you or moved your body unconsciously into his touch. By doing these things, he knows that you are noticing what he is doing. If you touch him back in response from time to time, he now has a very good sense of your interest in him and this will encourage him to take things further with you.

5. Talks To Other Girls Around You

He does this because he wants to see if you will notice and what you will do. If he notices that you are constantly staring in his direction while he is talking to this girl, he knows that you care about what he is doing and may be jealous. If you are always coming in to interrupt when he is talking to another girl, he knows that you have been paying attention and you are now trying to shift his attention to you.

6. Likes The Photos Of Other Girls On Social Media

You may be a follower or friend of his on social media or you may not. However, he does know that you are active on social media. He makes a calculated effort to like the photos of other girls on social media without liking yours. He does this to determine whether you will be affected by that by constantly watching what he is doing and even commenting on the fact that he tends to like the photos of other girls but never likes yours. This is how he knows that you have been watching and that you like him.

7. Makes Himself Unavailable

You may have invited him to do something with you and your friends but he always seems to have something better to do. You sometimes expect him to be hanging out somewhere because that is the impression he gave you over the phone or when you last saw him. However, you end up being at that place, perhaps with some of your friends and he is nowhere to be found. You end up sending him a text asking him about where he was and he responds that something else came up.

8. Ends Phone Conversations First

He is typically the one who ends your phone conversations with him even when it seemed like the both of you were having a really good discussion. You may have been really getting into it and having fun. You may have felt like you were really beginning to establish a connection with this guy through conversation but he suddenly ends it, leaving you wanting more. This is how he tests to see if you were really into what was discussed. If he gets a sense that you were, he feels like you like him.

9. Short Text Messages

No matter how much you try to engage him in longer text conversations, he always seems to send you short responses. He has a habit of doing this even when it seems like you are getting into a profound discussion. He does this because he doesn't want to give away too much. He wants to see if you keep texting him over time wanting more of his time. He knows that you do when you keep asking him to elaborate on things and he just keeps his responses short.

10. Gets Cocky

He may act cocky around you to see how you respond to it. He knows that cockiness is one of the traits that he has noticed that girls tend to respond to. Hence, even if he may not be naturally cocky or rarely shows cockiness in his daily life, he will try to be that way a lot more often than usual whenever you are around. He knows that if you respond to it, you have noticed. Even if you may be acting as though you were turned off by it, you are still looking his way and he knows that you may like him.

11. Sudden Change In The Way He Dresses

He wants to see if you notice his trending clothes. He may dress really nice when he heads out with his friends or is just running errands around town. He may have the latest designer clothes and shoes on because he knows that there is always a chance that he will bump into you. When you notice this sudden change in the way he dresses around you, there is a good chance that he is testing you to see if you approve and respond positively. Perhaps a compliment is all he needs to know you like him.

12. Becomes A Friend To Your Friends

He is now making a real effort to become friends with other people that you may consider to be your friends or acquaintances. You notice that he tends to be hanging out with them a lot more. They may even bring him up as a topic of conversation from time to time when they interact with you. This is how he gets to observe how you respond. If you seem welcoming to the notion of him being in your friend circle, he may get the impression that you are approving of him.

13. Makes Fun Of You

He will do this in a way that makes you laugh but also humbles you somewhat. He may make fun of the way you say a particular word or another habit of yours. He doesn't make it too personal. He plays it safe by making fun of something that he thinks will make you laugh. He knows that if you take this in a good way and play along by perhaps even making fun of him about something, he is having a positive effect on you and you may like him.

14. Shows Off

He may be playing a sport and he notices that you are around, watching. He suddenly starts showing off by taking the ball when it actually wasn't passed to him or calling out for it a lot more. He then proceeds to make a move to the goal. He could do this with anything. He may start running a lot faster on the track because you are watching, etc. He wants to test you to see if your eyes stay on him. He may even want to see if you cheer him on. This is how he starts getting the vibe for how you feel about him.

15. Boasts

He knows that you are within earshot so he starts boasting about something. It could be about what he did over the weekend, his car, his home, his career, something he recently purchased, etc. He just tries to boast as much as he can about it because he is trying to impress you and see if you notice by asking him questions about it or smile. If you do, he knows that he has gotten your attention and you may be impressed enough to consider dating him at some point.

16. Works Out

He may start building muscle all of a sudden. He makes sure that whenever you see him, he is wearing the kind of clothing that would draw your attention to the part of his body that he has been working out. He may wear a no sleeve shirt so that you get a good look at his bulging arm muscles. He may wear a low cut t-shirt so that you get an indication of his chest muscles. He wants to see if you actually look at him and focus on those areas, perhaps even compliment him.

17. Improves Social Popularity

All of a sudden, he is making real attempts to raise his social profile. He is accepting a lot more friend requests to his social media and going to a lot more social events. He seems to be everyone's friend. He knows that by raising his social profile and popularity, he may get your attention. He then wants to observe what you are going to do when you notice all this. Perhaps you will talk to him more or invite him to more social events. This is how he tests just how much you may like him.

18. Organizes More Social Events

He takes personal responsibility in setting up social events like parties and meet-ups at the local hot spot. He knows that the more he does this, the more his name will be spoken around your circles. You may get curious about him and start asking people who know him a lot more questions about him. You may even want to get a social invite from him to one of his events. This is how he knows that you like him and you are paying attention.

19. Engages In Dangerous Activities

He may start doing things that are relatively dangerous just to make it appear as though he is a really exciting guy to be with. He may start riding bikes or skydiving. He may start bungee jumping or going deep sea diving. He posts some of what he does on his social media accounts just to ensure that you don't miss it. If you respond to him by commenting on one of his recent acts, he has your attention. He will do more of it just to see if you keep responding.

20. Self-Deprecating

He starts to make jokes at his own expense. He wants to test you to see if you respond to how self-deprecating he is being. In response, if you were always to tell him that he is so much better than he is making himself out to be, he knows that you have a high opinion of him. He also knows that you may be responding to his humility in a positive way and that may be his opening to see if you like him.

21. Compliments You Often

He may use the tactic of constantly complimenting you when he sees you. It's almost like every time you see him, he has a compliment for you. It is not always a compliment about your physical appearance. He will mix it up by complimenting something about your character as well. The more used to his compliments that you become, the more open you may be to complimenting him back. This is what he is waiting for. If you were to start complimenting him back, he would take that as a sign that you like him.

22. Is A Gentleman

He may not be a gentleman with anyone else but you. For you, he takes the time to open doors or let you in line before him. He lets you have that parking spot or he grabs that elevator and holds it until you get there. He is hoping that you notice and respond. He is testing to see if you start returning the favor and doing kindly gestures toward him. If you do, he may get the sense that you like him. If you acted like you don't even notice what he is doing, he would surmise that you don't like him romantically.

23. Loud

He gets unusually loud whenever you happen to get into the room or the vicinity. He may have been talking to some friends or colleagues. His voice pitch may have been even and tempered. However, the moment he notices that you are now in the vicinity, he talks louder. He is testing to see if your eyes are drawn to him when you hear his voice. He wants to see how long you will linger on him before you move on. The longer you linger, the more he knows that there may be a chance that you like him.

24. Talks About Family

He has an interesting habit of talking about family with you or whenever you are within earshot. He assumes that family is important to you. He may even drop some hints about the close relationship that he has with his mother. He knows that if you were to respond to what he is doing, you would be showing that you took notice and may be in approval. He hopes to impress you and test the way you respond to what he is doing.

25. Becomes Overly Aggressive

There may be moments where he becomes more aggressive in what he is doing. He may become more animated in his movements or shove an object aside with force. He may become a little bit more aggressive when he is maneuvering through traffic or dealing with a stranger who disrespected him in some way. He is trying to show his masculinity when he does this and wants to test you to see if you respond positively to it.

26. Defensive Of You

From time to time, you may notice that he gets defensive of you. He may tell someone off for saying something to you that he felt was rude. He may tell people that you are a lot better than the guy who got the promotion over you. He will find ways to defend you because he wants to see how you respond to it. If you are constantly thanking him for it, he knows that you are taking note of what he is doing and he thinks that by doing this you may be showing that you like him.

27. Unpredictable

He wants to see how you react when he does something that you were not at all expecting. You may have both planned something to do for the day or a place to meet and he suddenly changes those plans on you by introducing something else. He knows that if you were to respond with a lot of enthusiasm and anticipation when he does this, you may be showing that you really love his company and thereby would entertain the thought of being in a relationship with him.

28. Shows More Emotion

He starts getting more emotional when you are around or he interacts with you. He may cry at a movie or show you how much his pet dog means to him. He will show you a side of him that is all about his sweetness. He is testing you to see if you really respond to it by complimenting him or even offering to go on walks with him and his dog for example. Whatever it takes to see how you respond to his display of emotion is what he will try.

29. Pampers You

You may not have expected him to get you a gift but he did. He does this on a semi-regular basis. These aren't always extravagant gifts but they are gifts that he knows you will appreciate. He may know that you love a certain type of flower and he gets you a bunch of those on a regular basis. He may get you the candy that you love or the perfumes that you love to wear. If you respond by being affectionate towards him and returning his gesture from time to time, he feels that you may like him.

30. Relates To You

You tell him a story about yourself and your past and he tries to relate to it. He makes a habit of doing this. It's almost like he has a similar story for so much of what you tell him. If he notices that you are responding to this by asking him follow up questions, he instantly gets the impression that you are also showing a genuine interest in his experience.

31. Asks About Previous Boyfriends

He wants to test just how much you may or may not still be into your previous boyfriends or a previous relationship. He asks you questions from time to time about them in order to observe your body language and what you say. If you suddenly appear uncomfortable or want to change the topic almost as quickly as it came up, he knows that you have moved on and may be trying to show him that your focus is now on him.

32. Compliments Your Friends

In order to know if you are truly feeling something for him, he may start complimenting your friends on a regular basis. He does it in a way that also makes you feel like you are truly a special person for having these kind of quality friends in your life. In other words, you are a good judge of character. He is testing you to see if you begin complimenting his friends as well. If you do, he knows that you are trying to match his energy and this may make him believe that you like him.

33. Wants To Learn More About Your Friends

He has taken a keen interest in truly learning about the people that you surround yourself with. He knows that by doing this, he will be able to gauge just how comfortable you are with talking to him about your friends. If you show an openness in doing this with him, he feels like you are letting him into your life and truly trusting him.

34. Does A Group Invite

He may not yet have the courage to come right out and ask you out. He decides to do so in an indirect manner. You notice that he will always invite you out in order to hang out with him and his friends. He will also tell you to bring your other friends along if you want. He makes it seem as though it is nothing but a hang out, however, he intends to observe how you respond to him while there. If you are constantly touching him and trying to get his attention, he has a good idea that you like him.

35. Talks To You Briefly Then Leaves

At social events or just in general, he has a habit of talking to you face to face and then leaving to talk to someone else for perhaps a longer period of time. You may have both been having a really fun and interesting conversation but he keeps it brief. He moves on to someone else and he is having a good time too. He will glance your way from time to time just to see if your eyes keep following him about the room. If it does, he knows that he has had an effect on you and you are longing for his company.

36. Wears More Cologne

He never really cared that much about wearing cologne in the past but now he does. He is wearing it whenever he is around you. You become accustomed the scent. He may wear it for a while and then wear something else just to see if you notice that too. He is testing you to see if you comment on it. If you make a habit of commenting on the cologne he is wearing to the point that you notice when he changes it, he knows that you are paying attention to him.

37. Shows Interest In Something You Love

You may love an activity in particular or an event or even some form of entertainment. He starts partaking in that activity, event, etc, in his own life. He had never done that before but all of a sudden here he is taking that gym class or going to those conventions. He is hoping that you notice and make a comment about it. He hopes that this creates a connection and you like him for it.

38. Mentions A Bad Past Romance

He mentions a romantic experience he had in the past that was sad and unfortunate. It may have been a past girlfriend. He talks about how he was done wrong. He tries to give the impression that she was a person who treated him badly even when all he was doing was being a good boyfriend. There may be semblances of truth in what he says but he may also be exaggerating. He is testing you to see if you sympathize with him. If you do, he feels like you want to show him that you won't be like his ex.

39. Confides In You

He tells you about topics that he doesn't tell anyone else. He lets you know that you are the only one he tends to tell these kind of stories and details to. He is testing you to see if you divulge any of these stories to someone else. If you don't, he knows that he may have your trust and thereby your interest. He also wants to see if you begin to open up to him about your own intimately personal stories. If you do, he gets a sense of how much you are beginning to like him and accept him.

40. Is Constantly At Your Favorite Hang Out Spots

You suddenly start seeing him at the places that you tend to frequent with your friends, family or just yourself. These are your favorite places to hang out. It could be a coffee shop, restaurant, park, etc. You see him more and more in these locations. He may be with friends or on his own. He is testing you to see if you notice him and acknowledge him in these environments. He wants to see if you are pleasantly happy to see him and even invite him over.

41. Talks About Your Favorite Shows

He may know that you like a number of TV shows or one in particular. Whenever you interact with him, he makes it a point to mention something about that show. You may not have even brought it up but there he is talking about it. He is testing you to see how you respond to it. If you respond with surprise and happiness each time, he feels like he is connecting. If you were the one to actually bring it up the next time you see him and ask him what he thought of the latest episode, he may feel that you like him.

42. Makes Helpful Suggestions

He goes out of his way to make suggestions to you that he hopes will help you with a particular issue or problem. You may not have even asked for the suggestion but he volunteers it anyway. He is testing to see if you really start showing a keen interest in his suggestions and start asking him for more on future occasions. If you do, he gets the sense that you may value his help and thereby like him.

43. Comforts You Often

He always comforts you in some capacity. You may not have had a particularly good day at work and he always seems to cheer you up. He may say something that encourages you or makes you feel better about yourself. He just has a way of making you feel better. He is testing to see if you start doing the same for him. If you do, he may get the impression that you are showing a genuine interest in him.

44. Remembers Minor Details From Past Conversations

He is really amazing in the way he can bring up minor details about something that you both talked about in the past. This is very impressive to you because you may not even remember that you mentioned that to him. He does this in order to see if you are able to remember minor details about him as well. When you are able to bring these up in conversation with him, he gets the sense that you are really paying attention to what he has to say.

45. Remembers Anniversaries

He remembers some of the most unusual anniversaries. He may remember when the both of you first discovered a TV show that you have now grown to love. He may remember when you got the letter that accepted you into the university of your dreams, etc. These are anniversaries that he believes are important to you. So he brings them up and congratulates you when they arrive. If you remember anniversaries that relate to him as well, he feels that you may like him.

46. Gives You A Unique Nickname

He chooses one that isn't commonly used. He wants you to realize just how special you are to him. His nickname will typically tie in to an experience you both had. He does it this way so that you remember that experience when you hear him use the nickname. If you were to give him a nickname in return that really means something and also ties into an experience that you both had, he may believe that you like him.

47. Talks About The Future

He talks about the future a lot more when he is interacting with you because he wants to gauge your response. He may talk about an activity he wants to do, a destination he wants to go or a goal that he hopes to accomplish. If you respond with talking about your future as well and you include him in that future, he has now gotten the response that he was hoping for. You are including him in your future, thereby making him feel like you like him and want to be with him.

48. Gets Silly

He may act a little goofy or silly around you. He may exaggerate his walk or just run over things. It's all done in fun. However, he is testing to see if you respond by doing the same or at least laugh at it. He knows that if you respond to it instead of ignore it, you are acknowledging him. He takes this as a sign that you may actually like him and may want to let him know that you can be just as silly when the occasion calls for it.

49. Asks For Favors Progressively

It starts with a small favor. He doesn't want to ask for anything too big too soon. However, he may ask to borrow something, perhaps your economics textbook, your notes for the last lecture, your pen, etc. If you agree to these, he starts raising the stakes. The favors become larger. Perhaps he asks for a ride somewhere or for lessons in tennis since you are so good at it and he is trying to learn. If you respond to these over time in a positive way, he now knows that he has reached a different level with you.

50. Mirrors You

He starts wearing similar colors to the ones you do. He may even start using the same technological gadgets. He does this for a time to see if you notice it. When you acknowledge that similar phone or that lovely color that he is wearing that you tend to love or that band he is listening to that you have on replay in your CD player, he is happy that you noticed. Now he begins to observe you to see if you start mirroring him as well. If you start picking up on some of his own tendencies, he knows that you like him.

CLICK HERE TO DOWNLOAD MORE EBOOKS.

DatingLogic.net